

One Black Mother's Fight for Her Child's Life and Her Own

An Unflinching Memoir of Love, Loss, and Resilience

In this powerful and moving memoir, a Black mother recounts her harrowing journey to save her son's life and reclaim her own. With unflinching honesty and raw emotion, she tells the story of her son's life-threatening illness, the systemic racism she faced at every turn, and the unwavering love that sustained her through it all.

From the moment her son was born, she knew that he was special. But when he was just a few months old, he was diagnosed with a rare and aggressive form of cancer. The doctors gave him only a 20% chance of survival. But this mother was not about to give up on her son. She fought tirelessly for his life, navigating the complexities of the medical system and the challenges of being a Black woman in America.

Along the way, she faced countless obstacles. She was met with skepticism and discrimination from doctors and nurses. She was forced to fight for her son's right to quality care. And she had to constantly deal with the microaggressions and racism that are all too common for Black people in America.

But through it all, she never gave up hope. She drew strength from her love for her son and from the support of her family and friends. She became an advocate for her son and for all children who are fighting for their lives.

This book is a powerful testament to the strength and resilience of Black mothers. It is a story of love, loss, and hope. It is a must-read for anyone who has ever faced adversity or fought for what they believe in.
