In Risk Game: Self-Portrait of an Entrepreneur, Guy Spier, a successful entrepreneur and investor, shares his insights on risk-taking and investing, and how he has applied these principles to his own life and career.

Spier begins the book by discussing his early life and how he developed his interest in risk-taking. He then goes on to describe his experiences as an entrepreneur and investor, sharing the lessons he has learned along the way.

One of the key themes of the book is the importance of taking calculated risks. Spier argues that risk-taking is essential for success in any field, but it is important to approach it in a thoughtful and strategic way.

Spier also emphasizes the importance of learning from your mistakes. He believes that mistakes are an essential part of the learning process, and that they should be embraced rather than feared.
